

NAWIC Honors BCCI Vice President Debbie Fleser during Women in Construction Week

San Francisco (March 11, 2010) – BCCI, a premier commercial contractor firm, is proud to announce that Vice President, Debbie Fleser, was honored by the National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC) during the organization’s annual Industry Appreciation Event. The ceremony was held at The Biltmore Hotel in Santa Clara, where BCCI’s co-founder and Senior Vice President Bill Groth presented Fleser with the NAWIC award. This award is in acknowledgement to Fleser’s years of service, innovation in the workplace, and exceptional contributions to the business and other women in the industry.

“We are very proud of Debbie’s accomplishments in the construction industry and believe she serves as a role model for our company and our industry,” said Groth. “Her drive, leadership, and strong commitment to clients are crucial components of our success in the South Bay real estate market.”

Fleser’s career in the commercial construction industry spans more than 26 years. Since joining BCCI seven years ago, she has served as an integral member of the firm. Debbie is a Vice President of BCCI and manages the Palo Alto office, overseeing the regional team and supervising the quality of services provided for overall client satisfaction. Debbie brings deep expertise in construction best practices and a detailed approach to project implementation. In addition, she is an industry leader dedicated to organizations such as Commercial Real Estate for Woman (CREW) and CoreNet Global.
